Our Journal deals in detail with the contributions made by Jewish settlers in Wellington District. It is also gratifying to find other historical societies recording the stories of our co-religionists from the 1820s through to the 1870s and the present time. The book is a valuable addition to our library.

5. MARY MACKILLOP AND SOLOMON COTTAGE, NORTH SYDNEY (FROM LOUISE ROSENBERG)

In March an interesting event took place at 9 Mount Street, North Sydney, to which members of our Society were cordially invited. These were Dr Kevin G. Smith and Louise Rosenberg (the AJHS Honorary Historian). The occasion was the opening of a cottage as part of the Mary MacKillop Memorial Museum. The cottage is for nuns of the Josephite Order to hold conferences.

The cottage is a permanent tribute to a man who in 1871-72 extended the hand of friendship to Mother Mary MacKillop and some 20 of her young Sisters of the newly formed order of St Joseph, when they were ex-communicated and rendered homeless by Bishop Sheil.

The story reads thus: in December 1868 the Institute of the Sisters of St Joseph gathered in Adelaide from their city and country convents for their Christmas Retreat. It was on this occasion that they first experienced the kindness and practical support of the well-known Jewish Parliamentarian, the Hon. Emanuel Solomon. He voluntarily came forward and offered to Mary MacKillop a row of cottages, rent free for as long as they needed them.

Years later, in 1902, Mother MacKillop wrote of his kindness “a house in Rosetta Terrace was kindly lent for the purpose by the Hon. E Solomon. The kindness shown by the Jewish community has been remarkable, but then, ST Joseph was a Jew”.

It will be remembered from our own AJHS records that Emanuel Solomon, born in London in 1800, was convicted together with his brother, Vaiben, at Durham on 4 August 1817 for having broken into a dwelling house and stealing coats and other clothing. The 2 young men were sentenced to 7 years transportation. They arrived in NSW aboard “Lady Castlereagh” in April 1818. The brothers were later sent to Newcastle.

Emanuel married Mary Ann Wilson in 1826 and when she died childless he married Celia Smith. Upon her death his third wife was Catherine Abrahams who was nanny to the children by Celia Smith. Emanuel and Catherine were married in Adelaide in 1852. One of the descendants of Emanuel’s second marriage is Dr Kevin G. Smith and he and his wife, Raymonde, were invited to the opening of the Emanuel Solomon Cottage.

The story of Mary MacKillop’s association with Emanuel Solomon was picked up again during the period of Mary’s ex-communication (22 September 1871 to 23 February 1872). The newly formed Institute of the Sisters of St Joseph was thrown into confusion when 47 young Sisters in Adelaide were left homeless whilst those in country areas were left uncertain and insecure.

As soon as Emanuel learned of the Sister’s plight he again offered them the use of one of his houses in Flinders Street, rent free, for as long as they might need. The Sisters dressed in secular clothes moved into the house continuing to live their rule of life even to receiving postulants (candidates for admission into the order).

Today’s Josephite Sisters feel it appropriate that the Solomon Cottage perpetuates their gratitude to the man who came to their aid when they needed it most. Solomon Cottage is part of the complex which holds the Mary MacKillop Museum, wherein a delightful diorama depicts Emanuel Solomon explaining why he felt impelled to assist the Sisters of St Joseph back in the 1870s. He died on 3 October 1873.

7. NCJW: SHEPPARTON REUNION

The National Council of Jewish Women, Dimona Group in Victoria, is holding a "Shepparton Reunion" to commemorate the first settlement in the area. The function will be held on 21 June at 2pm at NCJW House, Caulfield. They are seeking photographs and other memorabilia for the display.

Apparently an old shed on the original property is still standing and the property owner will not allow it to be demolished as he considers it a consecrated site.

8. MAITLAND PLANS

Immediate past President, Dennis Bluth, advises that an exhibition at Elizabeth Bay House on Architecture in the Hunter features the architecture of JW Pender who designed the Maitland Synagogue in 1879. On display is a coloured plan of the Synagogue with the signature of Morris Benjamin. The AJHS has a black and white copy of this plan.

9. JEWISH MANUSCRIPTS

Rabbi Ackman from Melbourne has contacted the Society to ask if anyone has unpublished Jewish manuscripts in English or Hebrew. He has already published 8 books of such items and is seeking material for another book. His fax in Melbourne is (03) 9523 1213.

10. EDGE OF THE DIASPORA

There are still copies available of the second edition at the Society's office.
